The Board of Parole Hearings received and reviewed Ms. Snyder’s pardon application and related materials pursuant to California Penal Code section 4802, and recommended him for a pardon on March 17, 2017. Ms. Snyder also received a recommendation for a pardon by a majority of the justices of the Supreme Court of California, received on December 18, 2017, as required by article V, section 8 subdivision (a) of the California Constitution.

By the laws of this state it is proper that I, as Governor of the State of California, give testimony that, by completion of her sentence and good conduct in the community of her residence since her release, Irma Rachel Snyder has paid her debt to society and earned a full and unconditional pardon.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby grant to Irma Rachel Snyder a full and unconditional pardon for the above offenses.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

Jorge Barajas

In 2005, when Jorge Barajas was 18 years old, he committed a series of robberies. During each robbery, he accosted victims on the street at gunpoint and demanded money. No one was injured. On May 2, 2006, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Barajas to 4 years for three counts of robbery, plus a 4-year firearm enhancement and a 10-year gang enhancement – a total term of 18 years.

Mr. Barajas has now been in prison for 12 years and has worked to turn his life around. In his application for clemency, Mr. Barajas explained that he committed these crimes in an attempt to get money for drugs, and that coming to prison forced him to recognize the severity of his drug problems and seek help. He wrote, “Now I can gladly tell you that I have a good idea and life plans to follow and fulfill. These past 11 years have changed me into a positive person.” Mr. Barajas got sober, stopped associating with gang members, and has shown that he regrets the decisions that brought him to prison. He said, “I make no excuses for what I did. I blame myself and take full responsibility. I’m deeply sorry for what I did.”

It is clear that Mr. Barajas has improved himself and left drugs and violence behind. He has been disciplined four times in 12 years in prison. He earned his GED and is currently taking college classes to get an A.A. degree. Mr. Barajas has participated in self-help programs including Narcotics Anonymous, Understanding Relapse, Victim Impact, and Criminal and Addictive Thinking. He received vocational training and dedicated himself to Biblical studies. In 2014, a correctional counselor commended Mr. Barajas for his positive programming and educational efforts. She wrote, “He appears to be putting all his efforts into having a successful life on the outside, by doing what he can on the inside...I could only hope we had more inmates that would apply themselves and use the tools while incarcerated in prison, as Inmate Barajas does. I feel that he would be a good citizen if given the chance.” Mr. Barajas has the support of his family members, who have offered him housing and help finding employment when he is released.

Based on his age at the time of this crime, his conduct in prison, and his dedication to self-improvement, I believe it is appropriate to reduce Mr. Barajas’ sentence so that he can be released on parole.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Jorge Barajas to a total of 15 years.

Barbara Chavez

Barbara Chavez was 22 years old when she organized and participated in the robbery of a liquor store. She stood outside the store while one of her crime partners went into the store and shot the clerk multiple times, killing him. On October 22, 1999, the Kern County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Chavez to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder plus a one-year firearm enhancement.

Ms. Chavez has now been incarcerated for almost 20 years. In her application for clemency, Ms. Chavez wrote, "I cannot go back and change the pain and loss but I do choose to now to be the best person I can be...I now consider myself an asset to society rather than the liability I once was." Ms. Chavez has been actively involved in self-help programs, including Victim Impact, Anger Management, Co-Dependent Anonymous, and Parenting. She is a Certified Peer Mentor in the Substance Abuse Program and has lived in the honor dorm. Ms. Chavez was also a domestic violence peer educator. She earned a GED and an A.A. degree, along with completing several vocational training programs.

In 2016, Ms. Chavez was commended for her participation in the Women's Advisory Council. Also in 2016, a correctional lieutenant commended her for facilitating the Power of Positive Thinking workshop. A housing officer wrote, "Her growth and dedication to assisting, and mentoring others has been consistent throughout the years as she is an active, productive, inmate who is an asset to her community...It is my opinion that upon release Ms. Chavez will be successful, and an asset to society."

Given Ms. Chavez's commitment to her rehabilitation, I believe that it is appropriate to reduce her sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute Barbara Chavez's sentence to 25 years to life.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Danilo Frank Cortez

In 1998, 17-year-old Danilo Cortez was riding in Ruben Franco’s car when they encountered a car occupied by several young men. Mr. Franco pulled up to the other car and Mr. Cortez pulled out a gun and fired it repeatedly. Yader Medina was shot twice in the head and died. Two other passengers were wounded, but survived. On September 13, 1999, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Cortez to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder. Because the sentence originally imposed was unconstitutional, a Los Angeles Superior Court judge considered his case again in 2014 and found that Mr. Cortez was “someone who can be rehabilitated in time to have a meaningful life.” On September 19, 2014, the judge sentenced Mr. Cortez to 25 years to life for first degree murder plus a 25 year to life firearm enhancement — a total term of 50 years to life with an opportunity for parole after 25 years.

Mr. Cortez has transformed his life during his 19 years in prison. He stopped associating with gang members, refrained from violence, and was disciplined just three times during nearly two decades of incarceration. He earned positive work ratings and a vocational certification, and participated in self-help programs including Criminals and Gangmembers Anonymous, Celebrate Recovery, and Nonviolent Conflict Reconciliation. He enrolled in educational courses, participated in a juvenile crime deterrent program, and assisted disabled inmates who needed help. In 2016, one of his work supervisors commended Mr. Cortez for his work ethic, applauded his “exceptional behavior and attitude towards supervisory staff as well as his inmate peers,” and recommended him for future employment opportunities. Several other officers and staff members also praised Mr. Cortez for his respectful attitude and positive behavior.

Mr. Cortez was found suitable for parole by the Board of Parole Hearings in 2016. In granting parole, the Commissioner told Mr. Cortez, “There was really nothing to connect you to any current dangerousness.” The Board commended him for his lack of violence in prison and positive programming. In February 2018, a forensic psychologist evaluated Mr. Cortez and determined that his risk of future violence was low. The psychologist noted that Mr. Cortez was “genuinely remorseful” and that his “insight into the factors that led him to commit this crime is sound.” Additionally, the psychologist found that Mr. Cortez has “significantly matured over time” and has “developed into a humble and generous inmate who is using his prison time to better himself and to help his fellow man.”

Mr. Cortez has accepted responsibility for his actions as a teenager and has dedicated himself to self-improvement since then. His conduct in prison has been excellent, and the Board of Parole Hearings determined that he would not pose any danger if released. But without a commutation, he will remain in prison until 2022. I see no reason to continue Mr. Cortez’s incarceration given the parole board’s grant of parole.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Danilo Cortez to a total of 19 years to life so he can be immediately released.

Philip Gordon

In August 1995, Philip Gordon and his wife Jill separated and filed for divorce. Later that month, Mr. Gordon broke into Jill's home, broke dishes and furniture, and left explicit messages. In October 1995, Mr. Gordon went to Jill's home with a gun. He threatened her and shot her boyfriend Michael French multiple times, seriously injuring him. On March 27, 1997, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Gordon to 33 years and 4 months to life for attempted murder, assault with a firearm, burglary, and firearm enhancements.

Notably, the victims in this case support Mr. Gordon's commutation. They wrote letters to me expressing their forgiveness of Mr. Gordon. They believe he has been sufficiently punished for his crimes. Mr. French wrote, "I have long forgiven him for his mistakes... I feel that the sentence was very extreme and ask that you consider releasing him." Mr. Gordon's commutation is also supported by his parents and other family members, who will provide him with housing and support in England, where he grew up.

Mr. Gordon had no prior criminal history before committing this crime. An investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings who recently evaluated Mr. Gordon's case determined that he has been "a model inmate for over 15 years." He has only been disciplined twice for misconduct, has never been involved with drugs or gangs, and has earned positive work ratings. He participated in several vocational training programs and earned his GED. Mr. Gordon has been involved with multiple self-help programs including Victim Impact, Anger Management, and Domestic Violence.

Mr. Gordon committed an extremely serious crime. But I am moved by the statements of his victims, and after 22 years in prison, Mr. Gordon's continued incarceration may no longer be warranted. I believe he deserves an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Philip Gordon to a total of 22 years to life.

Shawn Andrew Halstead

In 1993, Shawn Halstead and two friends decided to rob Edward Ahumada over a failed drug transaction. They forced Mr. Ahumada to drive to a remote area and took his gun. One of Mr. Halstead’s crime partners shot Mr. Ahumada twice with a different weapon, killing him. On December 13, 1994, the Riverside County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Halstead to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder.

Mr. Halstead has been incarcerated for almost 25 years. In his application for clemency, he explained that he has dedicated himself to serving others during his incarceration, writing, “I have served as a mentor, a tutor, assisted the church and helped other inmates. . . . I have exhibited personal growth, rehabilitation and remorse.” Instead of continuing down a destructive path, Mr. Halstead has demonstrated a commitment to self-improvement and rehabilitation. He has been sober for almost two decades and has never participated in violence or gang activity while in prison. Mr. Halstead has been disciplined twice for misconduct during more than two decades in prison. He has participated in numerous self-help programs including Alcoholics Anonymous, Alternatives to Violence, Anger Management, Substance Abuse Awareness, and Conflict Resolution. Mr. Halstead earned multiple vocational certifications and worked for years in the Prison Industry Authority. He has routinely received above average to exceptional work ratings. A teacher commended him for his work with other inmates in a literacy program, writing that Mr. Halstead “has consistently demonstrated high work ethics and shows great interest in helping the students as needed.” Mr. Halstead has been accepted to a transitional housing program, and his family and church community stand ready to help him upon his release from prison.

Many people sentenced to life without the possibility of parole give up hope and lose themselves in drugs, gangs, and violence. Faced with that same sentence, Mr. Halstead exhibited a commitment to rehabilitating himself and others. I acknowledge that this crime was devastating to Mr. Ahumada’s family members, who have opposed clemency in this case and wrote a moving letter expressing their continuing, profound sense of loss. However, after serious consideration, I cannot discount the turnaround Mr. Halstead has made during his incarceration. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute Shawn Halstead’s sentence to 25 years to life.

Natalie Lynn Jaspar

Natalie Jaspar and Thomas Hines were in a relationship with a history of domestic violence. On October 3, 1998, Mr. Hines and Ms. Jaspar were forced to move out of their home when an argument erupted. Ms. Jaspar threw a motorcycle helmet at Mr. Hines, who reportedly then hit and kicked Ms. Jaspar and threw her to the floor. Ms. Jaspar retrieved a gun and shot Mr. Hines once, killing him. On April 7, 2000, the Stanislaus County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Jaspar to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement—a total term of 40 years to life.

Ms. Jaspar suffered from years of physical and psychological abuse at the hands of Mr. Hines. A psychological evaluation noted that the "violence experienced by [Ms. Jaspar] has been extensive and pervasive," detailing physical and psychological abuse perpetrated by Mr. Hines towards Ms. Jaspar. A number of Ms. Jaspar's friends and neighbors described numerous injuries Ms. Jaspar received, including bruises, black eyes, welts, swollen lips, knots on her head, and missing hair. One witness testified that she overheard Mr. Hines threaten to kill Ms. Jaspar if she did not recant a police report of domestic violence she filed.

Since her incarceration 19 years ago, Ms. Jaspar has engaged in significant self-help, including myriad classes to address the factors that led to her commitment offense. She has participated in Domestic Violence, Self Esteem, Helping Women Recover, Anger Management, and Victim Awareness, among others. Ms. Jaspar had no criminal record prior to this offense and has not been disciplined for any misconduct in prison. She dedicated herself to self-help and rehabilitation, acting as a peer health educator, a hospice volunteer, and a certified grief counselor. Ms. Jaspar has also become a leader, facilitating various self-help classes and serving in leadership roles in the Long Termers Organization and the Women's Advisory Council.

Ms. Jaspar has earned the respect of correctional staff. In 2017, her warden at the Central California Women's Facility recommended her for clemency. A supervisor, a captain, and a retired chief deputy warden all commended Ms. Jaspar for serving as a role model within the prison. A captain wrote that Jaspar has grown "into a leader in the prison community" who "is a positive influence, a motivator, a problem-solver, [and] task-driven..." A correctional lieutenant wrote that Ms. Jaspar "exhibits an exceptional work ethic and is resourceful, caring, and extremely efficient in her job duties." A staff sponsor for the Long Termers Organization wrote in 2017 that Ms. Jaspar is "efficient, organized, energetic, and helpful," and has "maintained an excellent relationship with staff and inmates..."

Several of Mr. Hines's family members have expressed opposition to clemency, and I have read their heartfelt letters. While the profound impact of Ms. Jaspar's crime cannot be erased, I have carefully weighed the evidence. Ms. Jaspar's conduct in prison has been exemplary, and she has taken advantage of many programs to improve herself. I believe she deserves an earlier opportunity to make her case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Natalie Jaspar to a total of 20 years to life.

Claudell Earl Martin

In 1978, Claudell Martin was high and tried to reclaim a drug debt from Mitchell Cory. Mr. Martin and his wife confronted Mr. Cory at his home and shot and killed him. Either Mr. Martin or his wife then shot and killed Mr. Cory’s girlfriend Carmen Daniels. On January 4, 1980, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Martin to life without the possibility of parole for first degree murder.

Mr. Martin first tried drugs when he was in the third grade, and reported that he used a variety of drugs in the years before this crime. His parents sent him out of state to be raised by other family members, and he grew up surrounded by drug and alcohol abusers. Despite receiving a sentence that carried no possibility of parole, Mr. Martin stopped using drugs, devoted himself to self-improvement, and worked hard to become a role model for others in prison. In his application for clemency, he wrote, “I live to give hope to those who can’t find in themself to press on. I want to show every young man, you don’t have to make my mistake; use me as your example.”

He has now been incarcerated for almost 40 years and is 63 years old. He has not been disciplined for misconduct since 2001 and has never been involved with gangs or violence in prison. He has been involved in his faith for many years and has participated in self-help programs, including Alcoholics Anonymous and Anger Management. Mr. Martin could not read or write when he came to prison, but has since earned his GED and several vocational certifications. He currently works as a caregiver, providing services to elderly and infirm inmates. His correctional counselor reports that he is very respectful, has positive relationships with staff members, and works hard to care for his peers with disabilities. In the event of his release, Mr. Martin plans to live in transitional housing and support himself with his skills in upholstery and industrial drafting.

Mr. Martin had a serious drug addiction and committed a brutal crime. However, he has been sober and nonviolent for many years, and has dedicated himself to his rehabilitation. For these reasons, I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Claudell Martin to a total of 40 years to life.

In March 2006, Tyrone Mayorga was 16 years old and a gang member. On March 18th, Mr. Mayorga and Alex Murillo confronted Francisco Neri regarding his gang affiliation. Mr. Mayorga and Mr. Murillo drew guns from their waistbands and shot Mr. Neri as he attempted to run away. Mr. Neri survived his injuries. On April 18, 2008, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Mayorga to 9 years for attempted murder plus a 10-year firearm enhancement and a 2-year gang enhancement—a total term of 21 years.

Mr. Mayorga has been incarcerated for 12 years. He has committed himself to his rehabilitation through his immediate disassociation from gangs and his dedication to self-improvement. In his commutation application, Mr. Mayorga described how he has “reflected on my mistakes and wrong doings” and “learned from this experience.” He wrote, “I know I will be a positive influence for the people in need...” He told an investigator that he applied for a commutation because he has deep remorse for the victim and has much to offer as a productive member of society.

Since his incarceration, Mr. Mayorga has been disciplined for serious misconduct only once. He earned his GED and is currently taking college classes. He has completed vocational training in office services, welding, and carpentry. Mr. Mayorga participated in self-help programs, including Celebrate Recovery, Alternatives to Violence, and Criminals and Gangmembers Anonymous. A sponsor of Criminal and Gangmembers Anonymous wrote that Mr. Mayorga “has effectively communicated with the group and has encouraged individuals to benefit from the steps. He has been a reliable person and his attitude and participation are commended.” A staff member commended Mr. Mayorga for his attitude, stating that he, “gets along well with staff and inmates alike,” and “has demonstrated initiative, responsibility, professionalism, and has proven himself to be an exceptional programmer.” Mr. Mayorga has a plan for his life after being released from prison that includes guaranteed housing, therapy, and a scholarship to continue his education.

I acknowledge that Mr. Mayorga was an active participant in a very serious crime. However, he was only 16 years old at the time and vulnerable to the influence of gangs. Since that time, Mr. Mayorga has disavowed any gang association and focused on his rehabilitation. As a result, he has earned an opportunity to appear before the Board of Parole Hearings so that it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Tyrone Mayorga to make him immediately eligible for a parole hearing.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Ferrari Moody

On March 15, 2003, David Thomas, who was engaged to Ferran Moody’s mother, punched Mr. Moody’s cousin during an altercation, and Mr. Moody told Mr. Thomas to stay away from his cousin. A short time later, Mr. Moody’s mother told him that Mr. Thomas and two other men were looking for him and were armed. On March 16, 2003, Mr. Moody saw Mr. Thomas approaching his cousin and intervened, which started a fight. During the fight, Mr. Thomas punched Mr. Moody. Mr. Moody pulled out a revolver and shot Mr. Thomas in the calf and abdomen, killing him. On February 4, 2004, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Moody to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 40 years to life.

In prison, Mr. Moody has dedicated his time and energy to self-improvement, avoiding any gang activity, furthering his education, and pursuing vocational training. He has never been disciplined for misconduct while incarcerated. He earned his GED, a business literacy certificate, and a diploma in Christian ministries. He has completed vocational training in addiction recovery counseling and office services. Mr. Moody participated in self-help programs, in a San Quentin News forum with prosecutors, and a forum with elected officials about public safety.

Mr. Moody has earned the respect of correctional staff. A correctional officer with 34 years of service wrote in 2017, “I can safely say this is a man of growth.” Another wrote, “[It is clear that [Mr. Moody] takes full responsibility for these decisions and he understands the impact that his crimes have had on both his victims and the community.” An additional correctional officer wrote, “I can personally bear witness that Inmate Moody is a changed man. . . . Inmate Moody has the skills needed to be a productive, beneficial and responsible citizen to society, and his family members if parole is granted.” In 2017, a self-help sponsor wrote, “Mr. Ferrar Moody is a rare gem who has a lot of good work ahead of him when released.”

Mr. Moody has been incarcerated for almost 15 years and told an investigator that he is not the same young man who was angry and fearful. He understands it is his social responsibility to give back and be a positive influence in his community. Mr. Moody has distinguished himself through his self-improvement and exemplary prison conduct. For all of these reasons, I believe that Mr. Moody deserves an earlier opportunity to make his case to the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Ferrari Moody to a total of 15 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Quincy Darnell Robertson

On December 27, 1998, Quincy Robertson heard a noise outside his apartment, retrieved his handgun, and went outside to investigate. Mr. Robertson saw Rick Harris and Khinde Riley taking the hubcaps off his car and fired shots at them. As Mr. Harris and Mr. Riley fled, Mr. Robertson fired several more shots, hitting Mr. Harris in the foot and Mr. Riley in the back of the head, killing him. On May 17, 2001, the Alameda County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Robertson to 15 years to life for second degree murder and 25 years to life for a firearm enhancement – a total term of 40 years to life.

Judge Julie Conger, who presided over Mr. Robertson’s trial, “wholeheartedly” recommended clemency for Mr. Robertson. She wrote that Mr. Robertson’s case haunted her because she felt that he received an unjust sentence and “shot the would-be burglars in a moment of panic and fear for his family’s safety.” Judge Conger noted that “the inherent inflexibility in the law can lead to terribly unfair results in particular cases,” and that “correcting the inequity that was done by commuting Mr. Robertson’s sentence is the state’s last chance to bring about substantive justice in Mr. Robertson’s case.” She urged clemency as an “opportunity to show mercy to Mr. Robertson, and, through mercy, mend an awful tear in the fabric of our criminal justice system.”

Mr. Robertson has accepted responsibility for his actions and expressed remorse. Prior to this incident, Mr. Robertson had no criminal history, and he has not been disciplined for any serious misconduct in almost two decades of incarceration. He has avoided gangs, drugs, and violence in prison. Mr. Robertson has earned above-average to exceptional work ratings from his supervisors. A correctional supervisor commended Mr. Robertson in 2017 on his work ethic and stated that he “has demonstrated nothing but pure respect and class to all the staff and his fellow workers.” Another correctional supervisor praised Mr. Robertson’s work ethic and attitude, noting that if released, Mr. Robertson “would bring a positive impact to society.” A correctional officer wrote in 2017 that he believed Mr. Robertson would serve as a positive mentor for the youth of Oakland if paroled.

For all the foregoing reasons, I believe it is appropriate to reduce Mr. Robertson’s sentence so that he can be released on parole.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Quincy Robertson to 19 years.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Aurelio Sanchez

In September 1983, Aurelio Sanchez participated in the kidnapping of his former employer, Jack Lee. Mr. Lee escaped while in transit and suffered injuries to his head, leg, and chest, including a broken nose. On February 15, 1985, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Sanchez to life without the possibility of parole for kidnapping for ransom with substantial bodily harm.

Mr. Sanchez has been incarcerated for over 34 years and is 67 years old. Mr. Sanchez has not been disciplined for any misconduct in prison for almost 15 years, and an investigation by the Board of Parole Hearings revealed that Mr. Sanchez is programming well. Mr. Sanchez was unable to read or write when he arrived in prison. Since then, he has successfully worked to better himself. He furthered his education through English as a Second Language courses and earned above-average work ratings. An English as a Second Language instructor wrote, "He is a very positive student who always stays on task and puts efforts into his classroom assignments." In 2017, a supervisor noted that Mr. Sanchez is a reliable and hard worker who always takes on new responsibilities without being told to do so. Mr. Sanchez participated in self-help programs and resided on the Progressive Programming Facility at Lancaster State Prison for many years.

Mr. Sanchez was sentenced to life without the possibility of parole for his role in this kidnapping. He has programmed well in almost 35 years of incarceration and has avoided gangs, drugs, and violence for well over a decade. For all of these reasons, Mr. Sanchez should have an opportunity to appear before the Board of Parole Hearings so it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Aurelio Sanchez to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Oliver Thomas

Oliver Thomas worked as a security guard for a bank for about a month. Mr. Thomas and his brother decided to commit a robbery at the bank. On November 8, 1991, Mr. Thomas and his brother went to the bank. Mr. Thomas remained in the car as his brother went around the corner and confronted Donald Lee, a man who regularly made large cash withdrawals. Mr. Lee and Mr. Thomas’ brother exchanged gunfire; Mr. Lee was shot in the abdomen and died at the scene. On December 22, 1993, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Thomas to life without the possibility of parole for murder, plus a one-year firearm enhancement.

In his application for a commutation, Mr. Thomas wrote about his rehabilitative efforts and said, “Daily, I regret my actions on November 8, 1991, and daily I pray for Mr. Lee’s family.” He told an investigator from the Board of Parole Hearings that at the time of the crime, he was “struggling for direction and understanding,” but that now he has matured and developed the skills he needs to support himself if released. He explained that in prison, he has dedicated himself to self-improvement and focused on giving back to society.

Mr. Thomas has now been incarcerated for 26 years. During that time, he has only been disciplined once for misconduct. Although his sentence offered him no hope of release from prison, he has avoided drugs and stayed away from gangs. Mr. Thomas earned his GED, receives positive ratings from his supervisors, and has learned marketable skills through his work assignments. For several years, he has participated in a program that trains rescue dogs; he was recently commended by the organization’s director and an associate warden for his work as a leader mentoring other inmates in the program. They wrote that Mr. Thomas “is to be commended for his exceptional efforts and dedication to this worthy and vital program.” He has lived on an honor yard for years.

Mr. Thomas participated in a tragic crime, but since then he has been a model inmate – he has never been violent and has avoided drugs and gangs. He has earned a chance to make his case before the Board of Parole Hearings so that it can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Oliver Thomas to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Kilu Washington

In 1988, 18-year-old Kilu Washington and two friends attempted to rob Jeffrey Love. While his crime partners were inside Mr. Love’s home, Mr. Washington held Mr. Love’s 16-year-old girlfriend, Krisnia Hubbard, outside at gunpoint. After hearing someone fire shots, Mr. Washington shot Ms. Hubbard multiple times, then fled. Ms. Hubbard survived but suffered serious injuries. One of Mr. Washington’s friends, Wayne Puckett, was shot and killed by Mr. Love. On October 12, 1990, the Los Angeles County Superior Court sentenced Mr. Washington to life without the possibility of parole plus 5 years for kidnapping for ransom, attempted robbery, and a firearm enhancement.

Mr. Washington has now been incarcerated for almost three decades and is 47 years old. Mr. Washington has shown that he is willing to work hard to transform his life and help those around him. He has not been disciplined for any misconduct in over 15 years, and has turned away from drugs and gang activity. He earned above-average to exceptional work ratings, and participated in self-help programs including Anger Management, Alternatives to Violence, and Men for Honor. Mr. Washington’s wife and friends are prepared to provide him with housing, help finding employment, and assistance as he transitions back into the community.

Mr. Washington also earned commendations from multiple correctional staff members who interact with him on a regular basis. One correctional officer reported that Mr. Washington “has stood out as a positive role model for the inmate population... He should be commended for his efforts to rehabilitate.” In 2015, an associate warden praised Mr. Washington’s positive attitude and wrote, “It is my belief that if Washington is given a chance to return to society, he would be a positive contributing member and a good addition to any community.” One correctional lieutenant who has known Mr. Washington for 15 years noted, “Over the years I have witnessed Washington become a positive individual who mentors other inmates to not fall victim to prison culture or the gang culture in prison. Washington consistently demonstrates how to program not only by his words but also by his actions... In the event Washington is granted parole it would be my privilege and honor to have Washington live in my community or even be my neighbor.”

Although he is serving a sentence that gave him no hope of release from prison, Mr. Washington has dedicated himself to rehabilitation and has worked hard to set a positive example for his peers. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce his sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether he is ready to be paroled.
THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Kiiliu Washington to a total of 25 years to life.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 30th Day of March, 2018.

Winona Marie Weathers

In 1990, Winona Weathers and several friends confronted William McClelland at his home over a debt that Mr. McClelland owed to Ms. Weathers. During the confrontation, one of Ms. Weathers' crime partners shot Mr. McClelland, killing him. On July 20, 1993, the Fresno County Superior Court sentenced Ms. Weathers to life without the possibility of parole plus 4 years for murder, assault with a firearm, and a firearm enhancement.

Ms. Weathers is now 57 years old and has been incarcerated for 27 years. In her application for clemency, Ms. Weathers wrote, "I use my past mistakes now to teach others not to make the same ones...I have a newfound appreciation for life." She has participated in numerous self-help programs, including White Bison, Narcotics Anonymous, and Freedom to Choose. Ms. Weathers has worked for years in the Prison Industry Authority, including as the lead inmate in the dental laboratory, and earned positive work ratings and commendations from her supervisors. One PIA superintendent praised her work ethic and noted that she "exhibited an attitude of good team spirit...Her work and efforts are very much appreciated by the laboratory." Another supervisor wrote, "I would endorse Ms. Weathers for any position whether inside the institution or in the free world where I hope she will be someday released." Although her sentence gave her no opportunity to be released from prison, Ms. Weathers earned her GED and developed marketable skills. She has been accepted to multiple transitional housing programs, and her family is prepared to help her if she is released.

Ms. Weathers participated in a very serious crime, but she has accepted responsibility for her actions and has worked hard to turn her life around. I believe that it is appropriate to reduce her sentence so that the Board of Parole Hearings can determine whether she is ready to be paroled.

THEREFORE, I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the State of California, do hereby commute the sentence of Winona Weathers to a total of 25 years to life.
